To address this problem, we are developing an automated sleep stage scoring method using deep learning algorithms.

In this research, we attach great importance to collaboration with sleep medicine doctors and experts. By using their knowledge about sleep and its stages, our proposed method achieved the scoring with high accuracy.